

I do not believe that allowing any laws or regulations that harm net neutrality is wise. Allowing certain browsers to be hindered by another company would only serve to harm consumers who prefer other browsers. Society needs strong net neutrality to work effectively in the professional and educational fields. No one who thinks net neutrality does not matter does not have others' interests at heart. I support strong net neutrality backed by Title II oversight of ISPs.